

DAILY PLANET

ALL THE NEWS THAT FITS

Tuesday, March 24

1998

---

Marshall Center Hosting Agency Logistics Conference This Week

Marshall is hosting the Agency Logistics Management Conference Tuesday through Thursday at the Bevill Center in Huntsville. The conference is sponsored by NASA Headquarters' Code J. Topics of discussion will include ISO 9000 implications for logistics, integrated financial management, supply and equipment management and transportation management.

---

NASA Exchange Now Taking Orders For Earth Day T-shirts, Bldg. 4752

---

Solid Rocket Motor Testing Scheduled for 4 p.m. Tues.

A modified NASA solid rocket motor is scheduled to be tested at 4 p.m. Tuesday at Marshall. The test will last 30 seconds and is designed to provide a better understanding of nozzle performance on the Space Shuttle's reusable solid rocket motors.

---

Member of Apollo Survival Training Team Here Tues.

Native Panamanian Antonio Zarco is visiting Marshall Tuesday. Now 77 years of age, he was part of the survival training team for the Apollo astronaut corps. He was here in 1980 and is now accompanied by a documentary film crew. While here, he will visit with archeologist Tom Sever and tour the Space Station mock-up and Saturn V test area.